

ANCIENT FUTURE

Vastu Shastra - a belief system or a science?

BRINGING THE SACRED BACK INTO ARCHITECTURE

Oneness Temple at Varadaiahpalayam, designed by Dr.Prabhat Kumar Poddar

In ancient India, our entire education system was based on what is known as CHAUSANTH KALAS or the 64 Arts, of which Vastu shastra or Sthapatya Veda, was only one of the 64 Arts! This ancient Indian education system was so profound that people came from all over the world to learn and study them at Nalanda University. At that time Nalanda was home to 15,000 students from the world over. Many stayed for 20-30 years to master the various subjects, as noted by the Chinese scholar Fa Hyan, who himself stayed at Nalanda for almost 30 years.

What was this sacred and amazing knowledge that our forefathers had mastered, and which until the British entered India, was the only method of teaching and learning? After seeing this system of education – the 64 Arts, the British realised that with such a system of education, India could never be ruled. And the first thing they did was to scuttle and eliminate this ancient method of teaching, by claiming that our Indian system of “learning was a pagan belief system”, and not a science! Under the garb of modernism and scientific approach, this entire system of 64 arts was wiped away from India, and we are fast losing what has still remained of it. Today, we have become so dependent on the Western system of education, that we continue to totally devalue and neglect the amazing knowledge system we had, and to which the world is turning now. For example learning Sanskrit for the next future generation of computers!!!!

The need of the hour is to understand, what was that knowledge our forefathers had mastered? We need to research and rediscover the science of each of the 64 Arts, as each is called a SHASTRA - Natya Shastra, Vastu Shastra, Shilpa Shastra... etc. We need to bring this knowledge back into our system of education, and thus integrate the modern and the traditional into a new vibrant educational experience.

In these course modules, I shall be happy to share our efforts and work being done along these lines. I will also talk about the research work and approach we are involved with, as well as applying them in present day design and planning of various projects across India, and in different countries around the world. We have called this revival effort: THE ANCIENT FUTURE.

"In ancient times, architecture was not only a creation of form to limit or define space, but was inherently a sacred form, a three dimensional mandala. Our ancestors created forms, that were in harmony with the laws of that greater creation that surrounds us, forms that live not in time, but have outgrown time and live in eternity."

"Theirs was a magic of numbers, a sacredness of proportions and materials, a mysticism of harmonics and colours, a critical choice of the right location and the right moment in time, so that matter and form, expressed in a number of ways the cosmic truths, and made us experience the multiple attributes of the Infinite."
